About this ebook

Ryan Reynolds has worked with trainer Don Saladino since 2009, including for all three films in his foul-mouthed antihero franchise. Saladino's public comments focus less on exotic diets and more on daily movement, recovery and sensible carbs.

This ebook is an independent summary of publicly available interviews and articles. It is not affiliated with, authorised or endorsed by Ryan Reynolds, their trainers, representatives, or any film studio. Names are used only to identify whose publicly reported routine is being described. Every reported fact is paraphrased and numbered to its source on the final page. Sections marked Valtair adaptation are our own general suggestions, not the celebrity's plan. This is general information, not medical, nutritional or dermatological advice — check with a qualified professional before changing your diet, training or skincare, especially if you are pregnant, take medication or have a health condition.

CHAPTER 1

What was reported

1. Saladino has trained Reynolds since 2009 and prepared him for all three films in the franchise.[1]

2. Saladino: 'Ryan didn't pound the cardio throughout all three … programmes.' The focus was 10,000–15,000 steps a day to support recovery and sleep.[1]

3. Steady 'zone 2' cardio (around 120–150 bpm) was used, with short HIIT sessions of 5–10 minutes only once or twice a week.[1]

4. Progress was rarely tracked on the scale — 'once in a blue moon,' according to Saladino.[1]

5. Saladino told Esquire: 'We introduced carbohydrates and I think that's when his physique changed.' Sweet potato is reportedly his favourite carb.[2]

6. For muscle-gain phases, Men's Health (2017) reported he ate 'clean, whole foods' every two to three hours rather than relying on shakes.[2]

CHAPTER 2

A reported day

No complete daily menu has been published in the sources we used — so we are not inventing one. Below are the reported building blocks and training notes.

Saladino has said Reynolds's exact eating is 'irrelevant to anyone else' — no full menu has been published.

TRAINING NOTES

- Daily step target: 10,000–15,000.
- Zone 2 steady cardio most days; HIIT only in small doses.
- Rest, sleep, hydration and protein are Saladino's stated priorities for clients.

CHAPTER 3

The principles

Strip away the film budget, private chefs and trainers, and the reported approach comes down to a handful of repeatable rules. These are our plain-English take on them:

VALTAIR ADAPTATION

- Walk 8,000–12,000 steps a day — build up slowly.
- Same simple breakfast most days to remove decisions.
- Protein + vegetables at lunch and dinner.
- Fixed bedtime; aim for 7–9 hours of sleep.

PORTION GUIDE (HAND METHOD)

| FOOD | PER MEAL |
|---|---|
| Protein | 1–2 palms |
| Vegetables | 1–2 fists |
| Carbs | 1–2 cupped hands |
| Fats | 1–2 thumbs |

Smaller or less active? Use the lower number. Larger or training hard? The higher one.

Your 7-day plan

An original, everyday-budget week inspired by the principles — not the celebrity's actual menu. Indian-kitchen friendly; swap freely.

Style: Simple routine week (steps + whole food)

| Day 1 | Eggs + fruit + toast | Chicken / dal + rice + veg | Paneer / fish + sabzi + roti |
| Day 2 | Eggs + fruit + toast | Rajma + rice + salad | Grilled chicken + veg |
| Day 3 | Eggs + fruit + toast | Chole + 1 bhatura-free roti + salad | Fish curry + rice |
| Day 4 | Eggs + fruit + toast | Chicken wrap + curd | Dal khichdi + veg |

Read this first: cautions

- Note: magazine articles sometimes quote Saladino's own macros — those are his, not Reynolds's.
- Steps are a gentle, safe lever for almost everyone — start where you are and build up.
- Celebrity transformations are short-term, supervised and often timed to a shoot. Sustainable progress is slower — and that is normal.
- Stop and see a doctor if you feel faint, unwell, or your relationship with food starts to feel stressful.
